GOIZUETA BUSINESS SCHOOL, EMORY UNIVERSITY

Helped establish the Emory Marketing Institute (EMI) at Goizueta Business School with major support from Sergio Zyman (ex-CMO, Coca Cola) and the Zyman Marketing Group. EMI focused on brands and brand portfolios (including private labels) as the unifying force in guiding go-to-market strategies and driving overall company value. EMI also concentrated on issues related to brand and marketing performance management and upon competitive dynamics related to price competition between private labels and leading manufacturer brands. Finally, EMI served to expand traditional marketing and branding research to emerging or “next” practices in B2B, technology, services and retailing sectors. EMI worked in partnership with leading research organizations such as MSI and ISBM and thought leaders worldwide in facilitating such research and was responsible for initiating the 2009 Marketing Strategy Meets Wall Street Conference, replicated in Boston (2011), Frankfurt (2013) and Singapore (planned for 2015).

Initiated program design for Emory’s Modular Executive MBA (MEMBA) Program as Senior Associate Dean for Academic Programs. Helped develop and deliver an e-Business Executive Certificate Program

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN

Solicited, developed, and implemented an Executive MBA (Option III) program for Texas Instruments (to be subsequently taken to a cross-company) format. All advanced courses of this program focus on cross-functional processes (e.g., “supply chain management” incorporating concepts across marketing, information technology and operations) as opposed to functions (“distribution channels” from marketing alone). Additionally, developed “issue-based learning” (IBL) courses in the EMBA program to bridge the gap between theory and practice. These IBL courses address significant strategic issues sponsored by senior executives, undertaken by EMBA participant teams, and guided by faculty coaches. UT-Austin EMBA Programmes encompassed Austin, Dallas, and Mexico City (and later Houston).

Grants in Support of the Center for Customer Insight from Andersen Consulting and 3M Foundation. Additional commitments are from Dell, i2 Technologies, Intelliquest, Pfizer and Texas Instruments. The mission of CCI is to develop a collaborative, global network of leading business organizations and academic institutions committed to multi-disciplinary education and research on the emerging role of information technology in anticipating and satisfying changing needs and desires of customers in the global information age. More simply, CCI focuses on how to use customer knowledge and insight to drive business processes and how to use technology to enable these processes
